The Wall Street Journal (subscription required) reports that Apple is working on new technologies to provide video to TVs, though it has provided few other details. The article suggests that the company's plans for digital video will be a major concern of new CEO Tim Cook. As a minor relative in the digital video space, entering the market will be a great test for Cook, according to the WSJ. Analysis: What's the next step for Apple? It is thought that the technology could use the functionality of AirPlay and the features that will be present in iOS 5 to distribute content from iOS devices to the TV. For example, you could run a game from your iPhone, using the iPhone as a controller, while leveraging the tv's largest screen for a more immersive experience. Similarly, movies or video content on iPad, iPhone or iPod Touch could be streamed to your TV. The plans could also involve an Internet-connected TV - rumors that Apple has been working on such a device have been circulating for several years. Of course, Apple still has that it describes as a hobby – largely because the first iteration was far from perfect and didn't sell well. The latest generation of Apple TV, however, has been better received. This story, Apple Said Working on Video Stream to TV was originally published by Macworld U.K.. Apple helped launch the personal computer revolution in the 1980s with its Mac PCs. It also revolutionized the music industry in the 2000s with iPod and iTunes. He started the smartphone business with the iPhone in the late 2000s. More recently, he led the tablet and smartwatch markets with iPad and Apple Watch. Now, CEO Tim Cook and the Cupertino team want to go after one of the greatest tech success stories of all time, Netflix. They are making this happen with Apple TV Plus (officially labeled As Apple TV+). Wrapping your head around Apple TV Plus can be slightly confusing because Apple has released another product called Apple TV (no plus), which was a piece of set-top box hardware. There is also a pre-installed Apple TV app on all Apple devices. Apple TV Plus, on the other hand, is something completely different with a distinct approach to building a streaming library. So what is Apple Plus and what does it offer? This main guide has the answers to all your questions about Apple TV Plus. Want to try Apple TV Plus? Take it via the button below! What Is Apple TV Plus? Apple TV Plus is Apple's premium subscription stream trying to hire Netflix, Hulu, Amazon Prime Video and others. It is completely ad-free and features a number of original shows and movies made as part of the Apple Originals program, as well as a small library of licensed content. This reinforces Apple's existing Apple TV, which is both a set-top streaming box and a service that allows you to subscribe to other streaming services within the app. The idea is that you can take all your streaming services to one place, rather than having to remember multiple accounts and passwords. Since we know that it is confused with different services and products under the Apple TV banner, here is a breakdown of the three: Apple TV (product): a set-top box that allows you to stream videos from iTunes, Amazon Prime Video, ESPN, Hulu, Netflix and other streaming services. There are currently two models, one for HD and one for 4K. Both models run the Apple TV app. Apple TV app: A free app/service that serves as a hub for content from various streaming services, also allowing individual subscriptions to certain channels, rentals, or movie purchases. It is pre-installed on most Apple products (iPhone, iPad, iPod Touch, Mac and Apple TV). A Netflix-like subscription service with over 30 Apple Originals, plus a modest catalog of synd content. Is Apple TV Plus worth it? Whether Apple TV Plus is worth it or not will depend on how much the fresh and original content is worth. It's not the platform for people who want binge-watch The Office for the umpteenth time, with just a small catalog of non-original content. Apple TV Plus features some great original content that could be worth the subscription fee for serious TV junkies. They include The Morning Show, a drama starring Jennifer Aniston, Reese Witherspoon and Steve Carell. See, an epic sci-fi drama starring Jason Momoa and Alfre Woodard and many more. Compared to other big hitters in the streaming world, Apple TV Plus won't offer access to new hit movies or fan-favorite classics, but it's the only service to focus so heavily on big-budget original content. Apple reportedly has a budget of $6 billion to attract top-tier talent to the platform and deep pockets to keep it running over time. Read also: The best streaming services : Netflix, Disney Plus and moreApple TV Plus also have a fairly generous family sharing plan, which allows up to six family members to use the same account. Even better, they can use their own logins, so you don't need to share your password with anyone. Another thing to consider is that if you're already in the Apple ecosystem, you might be able to get a year of service for free. What experts thinkThe general consensus of and media is that although Apple TV Plus has a solid lineup of original content and fantastic streaming quality, there simply isn't enough content (yet). In our Apple TV review, we noted that while it's not exactly a runaway hit, Apple's streaming service is a contender. In addition to a unique three-episode-a-week content strategy to get observers hooked up quickly, it also features the best streaming bitrate in the industry. Plus, at just five dollars a month and a generous free offer for the year, Apple doesn't ask much for access to its content. That said, against us with other top streaming services like Netflix and Disney Plus (more on this later), the difference in the amount of content is staggering. Although both services cost more than Apple TV Plus, their catalogs are significantly larger and constantly evolving. Apple has invested a lot of money in Apple Originals and many of them are really worth watching, but none of them so far have caught the public's attention. Disney Plus, Hulu has Handmaid's Tale and Netflix has House of Cards and many more. The closest thing to a hit Apple TV Plus has is The Morning Show, which received mixed reviews at launch. Since then Apple has started adding syn union content to the service, but it probably never boasts the same extensive catalog of shows and movies as its competitors. No one is saying that the service is bad, only it doesn't offer the same value or pro proposal as other options. This could easily change in the future with one or two great successful shows. What do users think If I could only choose one, which streaming service would you choose? Apple has always kept user numbers close to the chest, so it's hard to say how successful Apple TV Plus has been with everyday users. Complicating matters further, virtually all current Apple TV Plus subscribers are still in their free year. This means that subscriber numbers could be tanked when the first wave of free trials expires November. In May 2020, we asked our Android Authority players which streaming service they would choose if they could choose only one, and Apple TV Plus captured less than 1% of the votes (results above). Most users commented that the library was simply too small, although it might be better as a second or third subscription for those who can't get enough content. Read also: We asked, you told us: Netflix wins big, Apple TV Plus falls (very) short There are, of course, other ways to evaluate interest in the service. One is Google Trends, which tracks the search volume for certain keywords. Apple TV Plus liked it when it was first announced, then again when the service was launched. Since then it has only stagnated, even in the face of a global pandemic in which everyone is at home streaming media. Compared to another service launched around the same time, Disney Plus, TV plus is barely a blip on the radar. It failed to capture the public's attention, either because of the lack of compelling material on the platform or the lack of a big marketing boost from Apple.La our best indication of user numbers comes from statist analysts who say the service could reach 40 million subscribers by the end of 2020. However, this figure does not necessarily necessarily paying subscribers due to Apple's one-year free subscription offer with Apple products. The number is also well below rival Disney Plus, which went online around the same time. Disney says it has registered more than 86 million subscribers for its service 13 months since its launch. The good thing is that, unlike its availability to launch, Apple TV Plus is now supported on Android devices (via Chrome and Firefox browsers), smart TVs, game consoles, and popular streaming devices like Amazon Fire TV Stick.Where is Apple TV Plus available? Apple TV Plus is available in 107 countries worldwide. It is not available in all countries that support the Apple TV app and does not include some high-population countries such as South Korea, Romania, Turkey, and others. However, Apple has promised that every Apple Original will be subtly or dubbed (or both) in nearly 40 languages. There will also be subtitles encoded on all titles for the deaf. Signing up for Apple TV Plus is easy and can be done from both the web and the Apple TV app. In fact, it's usually the first thing you see when you open the Apple TV app. Just tap Try for free and confirm your purchase to get started. The first seven days are free, but after that you'll be automatically charged $4.99 per month. On the web, simply go to the Apple TV Plus website, and then click Start Free Trial. You'll need to sign in to your Apple account if you're not already signed in, but the whole process takes less than a minute. No matter how I sign you up, you'll get a pop-up that will let you know if you have a free year to apply for due to a recent purchase. Which devices supports Apple TV? Apple TV Plus is only available in the Apple TV app, which thankfully is available on more than just an Apple device. It's not as accessible as other streaming platforms, but chances are you have several devices in your home that can access Apple TV. For Apple devices, any iPhone, iPad or iPod Touch with the latest software update can access Apple TV directly through the app, which should be pre-installed. Third-generation or newer Apple TV set-top boxes are also compatible. Read also: The best media streaming devices you can buySatti other popular streaming devices like those made by Roku and Amazon are also supported, as well as the new smart TVs from some of the most popular brands. On any newer smart TVs, the Apple TV app is already installed, but 2018 models may need to search for the app and install it manually. Some Smart TVs that are not compatible with the Apple TV app may still be able to access the service using AirPlay 2. This allows you to share the screen from any Apple device. You can see a list of supported Smart TV model numbers here. Android devices are greatly excluded Apple TV app is not available on the Google Play Store. However, the platform is accessible on Android devices via the web portal on almost all web browsers, just like on Mac and PC. You can also set up the Apple TV Plus app on PlayStation 5, PlayStation 4, Xbox One, Xbox Series S console. Apple TV Plus is all about the original content as part of the Apple Originals program. These include shows, movies, and documentaries with some of Hollywood's biggest names. The company's deep pockets and relationships with other industries give Apple's streaming service an edge over some competitors. There are many great shows and movies on Apple TV Plus and in many cases you can watch the first episode or two of an Apple Original series for free. This is a great way to see if you're interested in watching more before starting your seven-day free trial. To help strengthen the content list, Apple began syndicating older content in May 2020. At the time of writing, the only licensed content is the old Fraggle Rock series of the 1980s. This addition makes sense, since Apple TV Plus also has the right to release new Fraggle Rock episodes as part of the Apple Originals program. We don't list all the shows and movies in this article, but here's a short list of some of our favorites so you know what to expect. The best Apple TV PlusApple shows have invested heavily in original shows for the platform, and while none of them have managed to fully capture the hearts and minds of the general public, there are some excellent shows on offer. Apple TV channels and other contentYe are not technically part of the Apple TV Plus program, Apple TV channels are a great way to get more out of your experience with the Apple TV app waiting for more original content. Turn the service into something more like traditional cable TV, but without all the swelling. The Apple TV Channels program is essentially an a la carte selection of TV channels and streaming services that you can subscribe to within the Apple TV app. This allows you to consolidate most (if not all) of your streaming services in one place, with Apple cutting every Apple TV subscription. It's easy and convenient to sign up with your Apple account from within the app, but existing subscriptions outside the app can't be transferred. You will need to cancel them and resubscribe via Apple TV. However, there are some other potential benefits to signing up via Apple TV channels, such as higher bitrate streams and media downloads. It also makes it easy to manage subscriptions TV from one location. Many subscriptions can also be shared with up to six family members, just like Apple TV Plus.Here's a full list of confirmed Apple TV channels:Acorn TVA∓E Crime CentralApple TV VideoBet PlusBritboxCBS All AccessCinemaxCollegeHumor DropoutComedy Central NowCuriosityStreamEPIXEros Now SelectHBO (Limited)History VaultIFC Films UnlimitedLifetime Movie ClubMoonbug KidsMTV HitsMubiNickHitsNogginPBS LivingShowtimeShudderSmithsonian Channel PlusStarzSundance NowTastemadeUp Faith & FamilyUrban Movie Channel TV subscription fees vary depending on the channel but typically fluctuate around $5 or more. Apple TV Channel availability may vary by region, and HBO Now no longer accepts new subscribers after the launch of HBO Max earlier this year. In addition to Apple TV channels, the Apple TV app also integrates some other important streaming services. They will be listed along with other channels in the app, but launching them will open a third-party app to stream the support itself. Before asking, no, Netflix is not included. These include:Charter SpectrumDirecTVFuboHulu TVOptimum by AlticePlaystation VueApple TV Plus against the competitionApple TV Plus enters an increasingly crowded online streaming landscape. This includes the industry leader, Netflix, which has the advantage of having years of experience and an impressive catalog of original and licensed content on offer. While Apple TV Plus can't be compared to Netflix on the huge volume of content, it's significantly cheaper. The $4.99 subscription includes 4K and up to six simultaneous streams, while you'll have to pay a full $18 per month for 4K content and four simultaneous streams on Netflix. Read the full comparison: Netflix vs Apple TV PlusAmazon Prime Video is also a major competitor to Apple TV Plus. It also has a reach around the world, along with many great original shows that have won several Emmy Awards. It's also typically bundled with Amazon Prime, which is an incredibly popular service for online shoppers. It also offers 4K streaming for supported content, making it a solid alternative to Apple TV Plus.For American users, Hulu can also be a solid alternative to meet your streaming needs. The basic plan is slightly more expensive at $5.99 per month, but includes ads. You'll need to increase it to $11.99 to get ad-free streaming. One of Hulu's biggest perks is that it's often bundled with other services, such as the very attractive Disney Plus-Hulu-ESPN Plus package at $12.99 per month. Finally, there's Disney Plus, which was launched less than two weeks after Apple TV Plus. Disney Plus isn't available in nearly as many countries as Apple TV Plus, Netflix, or Amazon Prime Video, but it does have an extensive collection of popular content. Most of the of the Pixar, Marvel and Star Wars films, as well as Disney classics, helped the service enroll over 50 million users in its first six months Launch.
